Quebec: Mega Migration and Belugas of Tadoussac

2nd October to 9th October 2022 (8 days)

Northern Goshawk by Lev Frid

Tadoussac is a largely undiscovered jewel in North American birding. It is one of the best places to view visible migration in the world, often involving flights of thousands of birds – finches, shorebirds, seaducks and raptors. Its northern setting makes it an excellent place to view movements of boreal finches and northern raptors, as well as seaducks such as Black, Surf and White-winged Scoters, Long-tailed Ducks and Common Eiders, gulls such as Glaucous, Iceland and Black-legged Kittiwake as well as Northern Gannets on the mighty St. Lawrence River. The St. Lawrence also hosts a resident population of Beluga whales, the southernmost in the world – which are easily visible just by walking down to the river from our hotel!

THE TOUR IN DETAIL...

Day 1 - Arrival in Montréal. After arriving in Montréal, we will meet up this evening for a welcome dinner and talk over our plans for the forthcoming tour of this hidden birding gem.

Day 2 - Montréal to Tadoussac via Cap-Tourmente. Our birding begins this morning in Montréal, a large and modern Canadian city where both French and English are spoken. From here, we will take a scenic 5.5hour drive to Tadoussac, stopping at Cap-Tourmente - a beautiful park famous for thousands of Snow Geese, and which also gives us a good chance of seeing American Black Bear. We will explore the meadows and marshes of the Cap, which will give us our first taste of Laurentide birding.

Black Scoters by Lev Frid

Cap-Tourmente is a famous migration hotspot for Quebecois birders, with over 300 species being recorded at the site - including an amazing grab-bag of rarities such as Purple Gallinule, Tundra Bean Goose, Curlew Sandpiper, Tropical Kingbird and many others! You never know what may show up.

Once we arrive in Tadoussac, we will settle into our comfortable hotel, only steps from the St. Lawrence River, which will serve as our home base for the next 5 nights.

Days 3 to 6 - Tadoussac and surrounds. Tadoussac is a largely undiscovered jewel in North American birding. It is one of the best places to view visible migration in the world, often involving flights of thousands of birds – be they finches, shorebirds, seabirds or raptors. Its northern setting makes it an excellent place to view movements of boreal finches and northern raptors, as well as seabirds such as Black, Surf and White-winged Scoters, Long-tailed Ducks and Common Eiders, gulls such as Glaucous, Iceland and Black-legged Kittiwake as well as Northern Gannets on the mighty St. Lawrence River.

The St. Lawrence also hosts a resident population of Beluga Whale, the southernmost in the world – which are easily visible just by walking down to the river from our hotel! Much of the Icelandic population of Barrow's Goldeneye is found here at this time of year.

The famous dunes are an exciting place to view migration, with birds from raptors to finches often passing at eye-level. Some days, thousands of crossbills, grosbeaks and redpolls pass through in a few hours, but every day offers new and exciting birding. The possibility of finding surprises is always there, such as a day-roosting Boreal Owl, a transient Gyrfalcon, or even a truly rare vagrant such as Ross's Gull, which has occurred in the area on multiple occasions.

We will explore northwards along the river to the breathtaking Pointe-aux-Outardes (Snow Goose Point), stopping at various jetties and beaches in search of shorebirds and alcids. Large flocks of Dunlin, White-rumped Sandpiper, Sanderling and other late migrating shorebirds entertain us while we diligently scan for rarities, whilst flocks of Razorbills and possibly even an Atlantic Puffin or other alcids lounge on the river.

We will also seek out resident species such as Spruce Grouse, Black-backed and American Three-toed Woodpecker and Boreal Chickadee in the vast boreal forest surrounds. Nearby freshwater marshes can host thousands of Snow Geese and other waterfowl. Our four full days at Tadoussac should provide us with at least one good raptor flight, where Golden Eagle, Rough-legged Hawk and Northern Goshawk are the stars, as they migrate along the river, often low and sometimes in double-digit numbers!

Day 7 - Tadoussac to Montréal. We will have one more morning to bird the Tadoussac area for new arrivals or species we may not have found yet. In the late morning, we shall start making our
