Tour Summary

Black-banded Owl by Tom Jackman

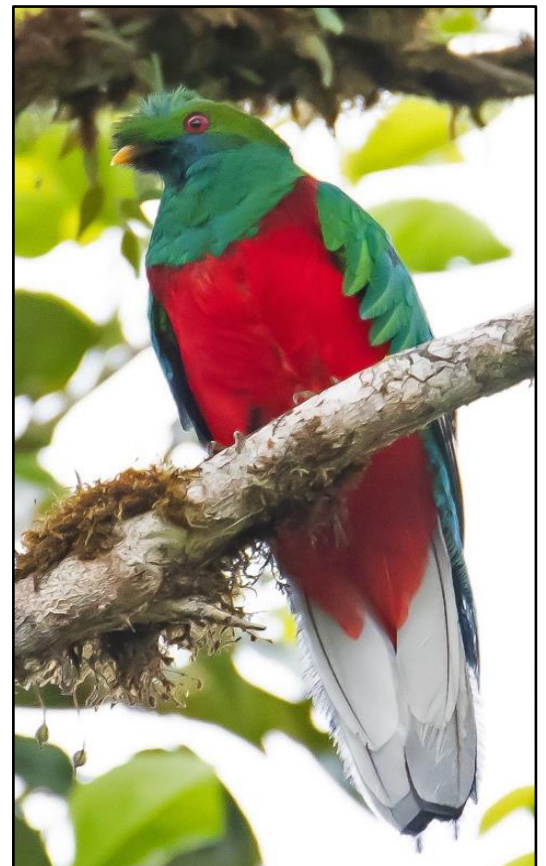

Due to its diverse habitat array, ranging from the high Andes to excellent lowland rainforest, north-western South America has the highest avian diversity in the world. Ecuador is fortuitously situated within the heart of this fantastic ecological region, boasting a bird list of over 1,700 species! Furthermore, its small size, good infrastructure, unsurpassable scenery and friendly people make Ecuador one of the planet's most delightful birding destinations. In November of 2022, we birded the north of the country, first exploring the cloud forests and tropical foothills of the vast east-slope, and then descending into the mega-diverse Amazon basin of the Rio Napo region. The highlights of our epic jungle adventures are further narrated in this report.

Tour in Detail

Our ultimate Amazon adventure commenced at the lodge deck of Cabañas San Isidro where we enjoyed some of the garden birds, including fancy Inca Jays, Black-billed Peppershrike and a bulky Strong-billed Woodcreeper. After the rain had stopped, we explored a forest track where we got rewarded with prolonged views of a superb male Crested Quetzal — what an absolute stunner! Ashy-headed Tyrannulet was also a nice catch just before dusk. At dinner we were interrupted by the amazing Black-banded Owl that was posing for us in the spotlights!

Breakfast at Cabañas San Isidro was a highlight. Not because of the delicious food but because of all the birdlife showing up at the lodge deck — a true feeding frenzy! Inca Jays even landed on the handrail and other species that we enjoyed at touching-distance included Masked Trogon, Black-billed Peppershrike, Cinnamon Flycatcher, Subtropical Cacique, Russet-backed Oropendola, Montane and Olive-backed Woodcreeper, Smoke-colored Pewee and Pale-edged Flycatcher. Rarer guests that showed up were Variegated and Marble-faced Bristle Tyrants, Golden-collared Honeycreeper and Oleaginous Hemispingus — all bonus birds! Our date with White-bellied Antpitta went smoothly and the bird showed up almost instantly at the worm feeder. A tactical stop at Cosanga did not get us the desired Torrent Duck but we did connect with the lovely Torrent Tyrannulet.

We then continued to the famed Guacamayos, a ridge with pristine cloud forest, among the most diverse and wettest forests in eastern Ecuador, and the first cordillera that the clouds from the Amazon basin run into. Here we enjoyed a nice mixed-species flock with stunners like Hooded Mountain, Lacrimose Mountain, Blue-winged Mountain and Grass-green Tanagers. Birding along Loreto Road produced many novelties, including Cliff Flycatcher, Fasciated Tiger Heron, White-capped Dipper and Chestnut-eared Aracari. Undoubtedly, our best bird was an adult Black-and-white Hawk-Eagle that flew low overhead, resulting in perfect views — a real cracker! At Wildsumaco Lodge we were welcomed by an overdose of hummingbirds at the feeders. Military Macaws flew by at the lodge deck and a fantastic Wattled Guan was posing for us in a fruiting Cecropia tree — a mega day with a total of 161 bird species recorded!

The moth sheet was productive in the morning, with great views of tough birds like Western Fire-eye, Plain Antvireo and up to three Black-streaked Puffbirds — sweet! A mixed-species flock at the parking lot got us goodies like Cerulean Warbler, Collared Trogon, Red-headed Barbet and Streaked Xenops. Down the Coopmans trail we got Striolated and Blue-rumped Manakins and at the worm feeders we enjoyed a forest-floor fest with fantastic views of Plain-backed and Ochre-breasted Antpittas! The hummingbird feeders and flowers at the lodge deck kept us busy with jewels like Wire-crested Thorntail, Violet-headed Hummingbird, Green Hermit, Napo Sabrewing, Violet-fronted and Black-throated Brilliant, Fork-tailed Woodnymph, Golden-tailed Sapphire, Many-spotted Hummingbird and Gould's Jewelfront. Bird activity at the deck was pumping with star birds like Golden-collared Toucanet and a male Andean Cock-of-the-rock. Birding along the entrance road got us many highlights including Green-backed Trogon, Yellow-throated Toucan, Thrush-like Wren and Yellow-tufted Woodpecker. We also successfully targeted Western Striolated Puffbird — the sought-after Obama bird! The Face trail was challenging birding but after some effort we connected nicely with a male White-crowned Manakin. At the viewpoint, we picked up a raptor, another adult Black-and-white Hawk-Eagle — how bizarre, running into such a rare species two days in a row!

The following morning, we added Black-faced Antbird to the mix when checking the moth sheet for insectivorous birds. A Gorgeted Woodstar that was briefly foraging on verbena flowers was another addition to the list. We then birded the infamously steep Piha trail where we tracked down a bunch of rare species. We kicked off with a Brown Nunlet, soon followed by Large-headed Flatbill and Fulvous Shrike-Tanager. A fantastic Yellow-throated Spadebill popped up in the midstory providing us with superb views — a real cracker! Shortly after, we got our bins on another rarity — Grey-tailed Piha! After lunch, we connected sweetly with a male Fiery-throated Fruiteater. Our owling session was exciting with great views of Tropical Screech and Band-bellied Owls. A Foothill Screech Owl refused to come out and remained heard-only.

Citron-bellied Attila by Astar Winoto

In the early morning, we did another effort to find Copper-chested Jacamar but without success. Our drive to Coca was pleasant, and so was the boat ride along the Rio Napo, picking up a few birds like Fork-tailed Palm Swift, Yellow-headed Caracara and Cocoli Heron. Our stay at Sani Lodge in the remote Amazonian forests at the edge of Yasuni National Park was a delight. Creek birding from the canoe got us many highlights including Green-backed Trogon, Purple-throated Fruitcrow and Pygmy Antwren. At the lodge we were welcomed by the amazing Hoatzin and a loud concert of caciques and oropendolas — Amazonia at its best! Afternoon birding around the lake got us goodies like Cinnamon Attila, Boat-billed Heron, Snail Kite, Masked Crimson Tanager and lovely flyovers of Red-bellied Macaw and Orange-winged Amazon. A Great Potoo at its day-roost was surely another highlight — what a fantastic camouflage!

Today we had planned an early start to the canopy tower, but it rained on us. Therefore, we first did some garden birding from under a roof enjoying views of stunners like Black-fronted Nunbird and Red-capped Cardinal. Luckily, the rain stopped, and we could still enjoy the tower for most of the morning. Highlights included Citron-bellied and Cinnamon Attila, Plum-throated Cotinga, Gilded Barbets, Paradise, Opal-crowned and Opal-rumped Tanagers, and an obliging pair of Lafresnaye's Piculets foraging next to the deck! Amazing was the ability of our local guide Olger, who made a raucous call, bringing in a pair of fantastic Blue-and-yellow Macaws circling the tower! The forest trail was exciting with views of both Wire-tailed and Golden-headed Manakins. Plain-winged Antshrike and Common Scale-backed Antbird were also nice pickups. After lunch, we got lucky with two adult King Vultures soaring in the sky. The river islands of the Rio Napo were also productive with Oriole Blackbirds, Olive-spotted Hummingbird, and even some boreal migrants like Least Sandpiper and Peregrine Falcon. American Pygmy Kingfisher and Agami Heron were awesome surprises that we spotlighted after dusk!

The following morning, we were woken up by thunder and lightning — yikes! In our rain ponchos we left for the Rio Napo in the hope for some drier weather. Our tactic worked and when we reached the river islands the rain had eased significantly. We found lots of good birds including the amazing Horned Screamer — a true unicorn! The highly localized Black-and-white Antbird showed exceptionally well. We had great views of Ladder-tailed Nightjar and the Orange-backed Troupial was awesome too. Unlike its name suggests, the Drab Water Tyrant was another favourite. At the community we enjoyed a local lunch with Chicha, Guayusa and barbeque grubs for some — delicious! The Yasuni trail in terra firme forest was challenging but rewarding with a small mixed-species flock yielding Cinereous and Dusky-throated Antshrikes and a male Long-winged Antwren. Red-throated Caracaras and Blue-capped Manakins were other highlights that we enjoyed. The rare Hairy-crested Antbird was singing at the edge of the trail but never came out for viewing. In turn, Sooty Antbird was briefly seen.

On our last day we decided to go back to the tower for another try at deep forest eagles. We added a lot of new canopy birds to the list with great views of White-necked and Pied Puffbird, Greyish Mourner and Amazonian Trogon. Some of us got lucky with brief views of Amazonian Umbrellabird and Double-toothed Kite. Along the creek we heard a bunch of good antbird species, including the rare and localized Cocha Antshrike, but it would not come out for viewing! The fancy Dot-backed Antbird was the only one to show itself, of which we had great views. The afternoon was dedicated to the Chorongó trail which was a great move as we kept running into rare birds! We started off with prolonged views of both White-chinned and Great Jacamar, soon followed by Chestnut and Scaly-breasted Woodpecker. The amazing Long-billed Woodcreeper also showed up — what a beast! A male Plumbeous Antbird came out nicely and we all got excellent views of a male Cocha Antshrike — a mega and a Sani specialty! Just before dusk a Collared Puffbird started vocalizing and we managed to get prolonged scope views of this rare beauty. After dark we successfully spotlighted both Great and Common Potoo at the lake — a wonderful sighting to end the trip with!
